

city = event

fissures

unlandscaping the city of melbourne economic crisis, environmental catastrophe, climate change, infrastructural collapse.....

This is the 'reality' of the city. These events, real, imagined, structural and physical are embedded in the fabric of the city. This fabric is immune to the seemingly linear flow of time. There is no before, after or now, but a continuous transformation of the city creating fissures through time and space. This project is an investigation into uncovering those fissures this is and yet is not form*

Form as the expression of multiple possibilities, of the city, of design, of politics and discourse. form as strategy, form ultimately as intent.

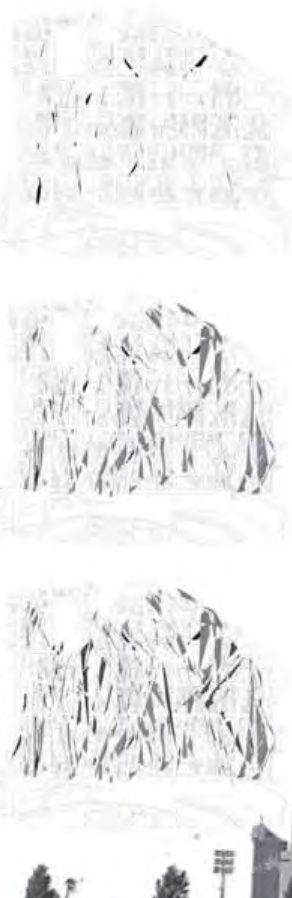

Fissures

Pod 4/5 Design

city intensities

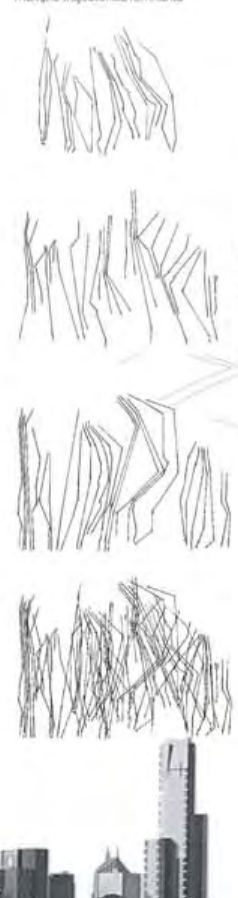

simultaneous events

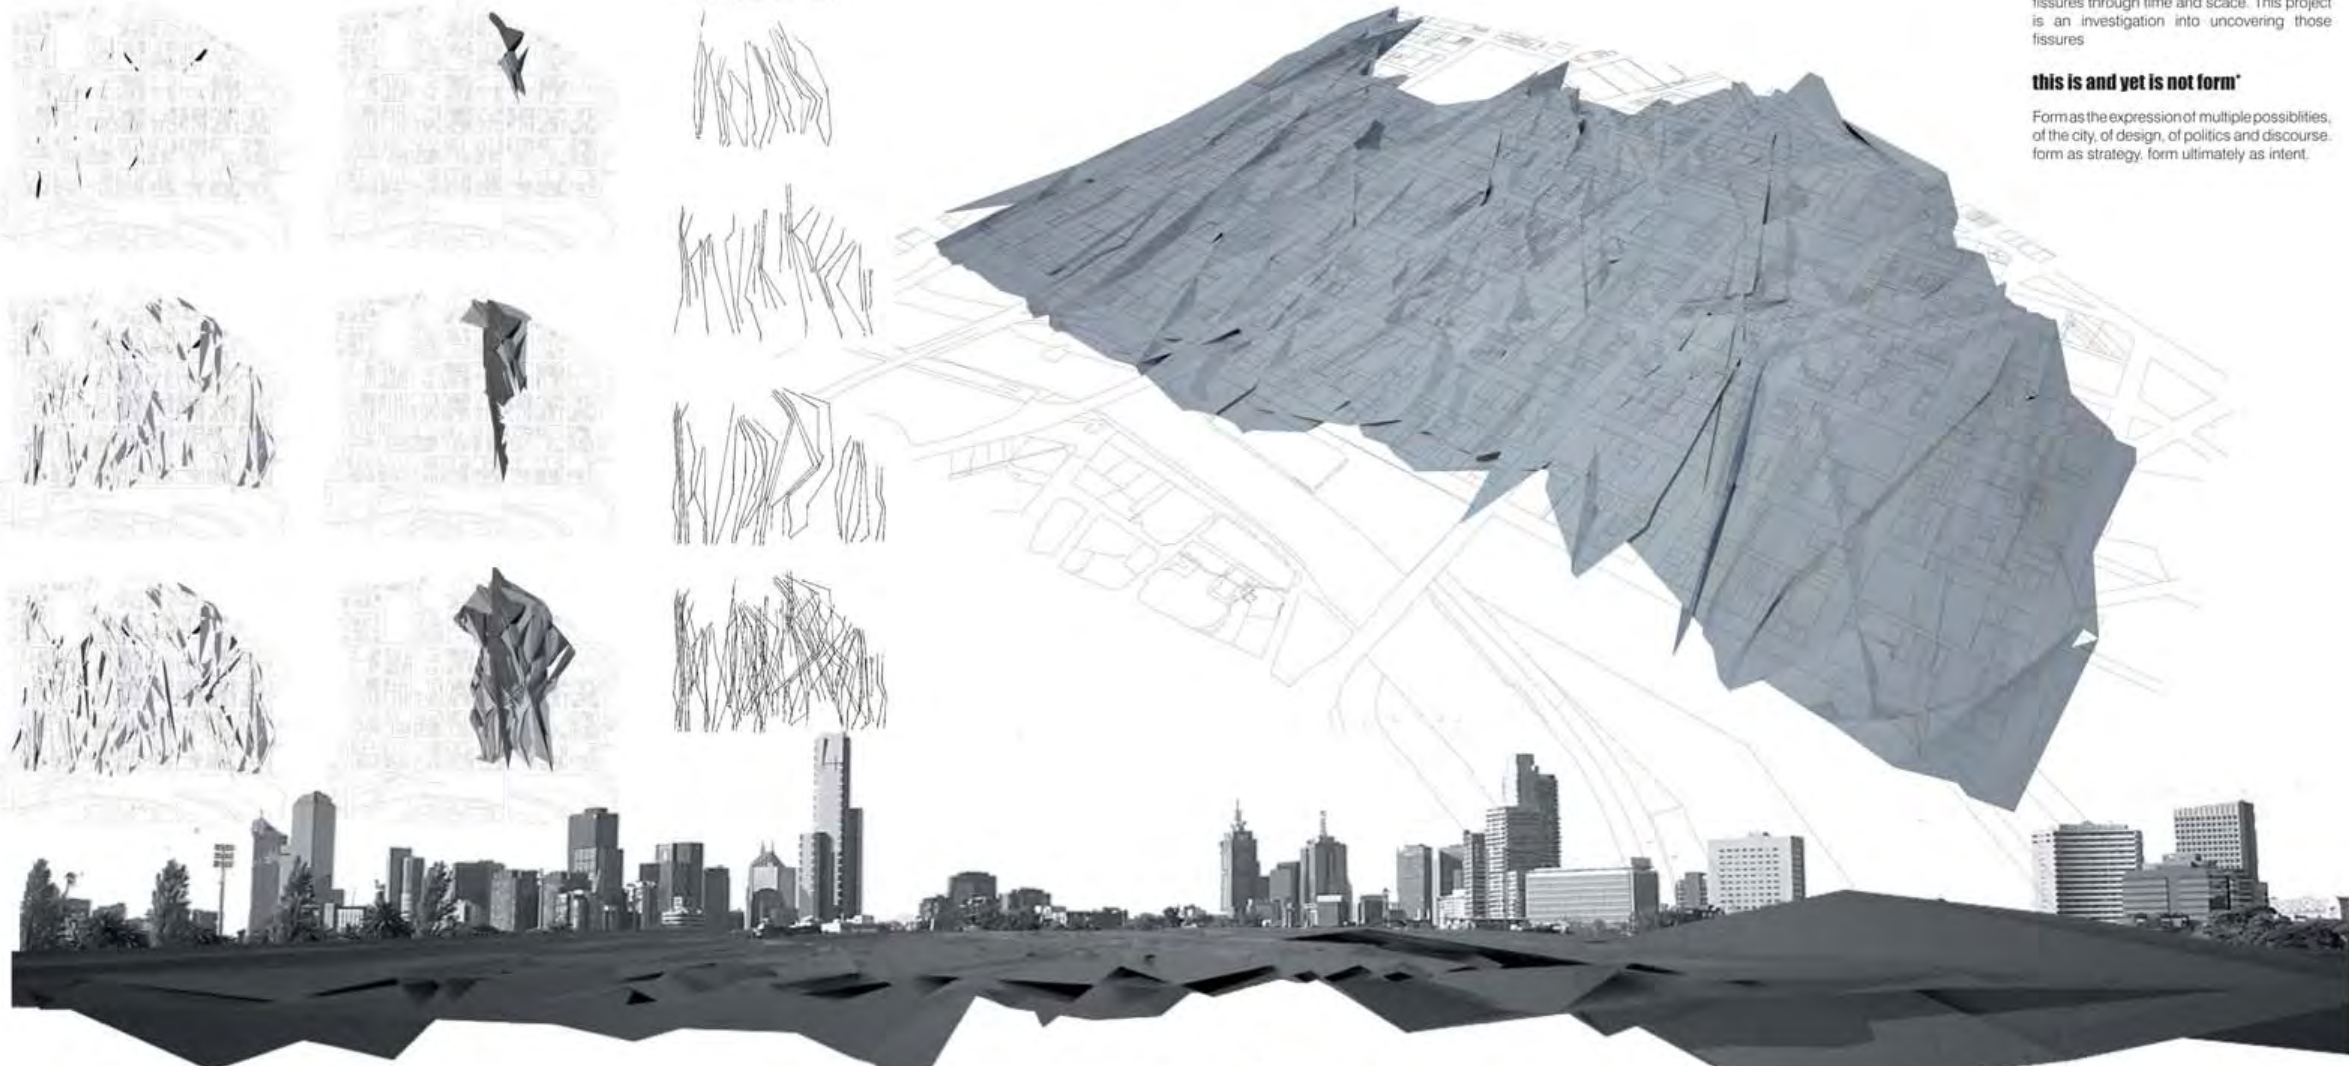

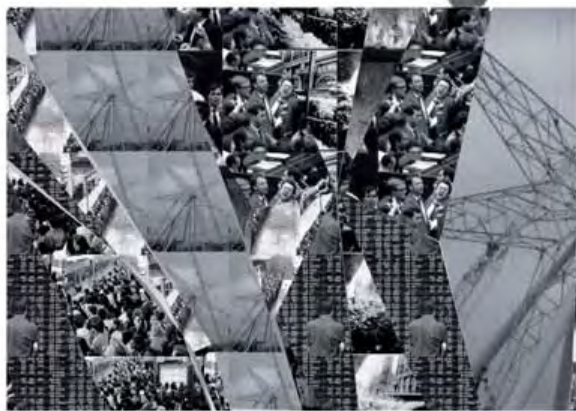

fissure through time

multiple trajectories/remnants

time + space studies

UNLAND SCAPED 2009

IN PARTNERSHIP WITH HUB STREET EQUIPMENT